Admissions Process Re-Engaged

As mentioned in last week's update, the COVID-19 Response Team has authorized the re-engaging of our admissions process this week. We want to be extremely cautious when it comes to introducing new folks, especially into group living environments, but we believe we can do so safely. Procedures have been developed and employees managing and monitoring the referral process have been trained accordingly.

Looking Ahead

Our COVID-19 Response Team meets routinely to assess the current situation and carefully design our continued response as we move toward the other side of this crisis. We are committed to monitoring the guidance provided by federal, state, and local officials. In addition, we are engaged with industry specific resources both nationally and within Iowa. Again, we will provide you with information and announcements regarding our response in this format each week as available.
